

The advantage of having a lot of different cell phone providers is that you can switch providers to choose the best rates. The disadvantage to me right now of changing providers--especially as I use my phone for business--is that if I change companies, I am forced to change phone numbers, notify all my clients, change my business cards, etc. I'd really like to have "number portability" so I can keep my current number.